Special to the Gazette. LONDON, Nov. 15 .- There is no doubt that the British government are setting their house in order, and are preparing for dissolution, but it would be quite rash to infer that the ministers will ride for a fall in the coming session. Salishury, who presides over the cabinet, is enpable, as has been seen, of greaterrors of parliamentary judgment; but as incapable as any of the seventeen gentiemen can be of rebellion against his authority, yet the ministers feel that they are unable to calculate what may happen to their bills which cannot again be postposed. Right Hon. William Henry Smith, government leader in the house of commons, on Wednesday issued a whip to the Tory members urging them to be on hand at the opening of parliament on the 25th met. gency lies in the fact that the Tory party will be called to-gether early in the session and given to understand that the eafe passage of the government through the session depends upon the loassing of the tithes bill, the Irish land purchase bill and probably of a measure hanging upon the budget, which will be proposed for the establishment of free schools. But these are matters on which the government is almost every day receiving unfavorable representation. The Tories who may representation. have to face their constituents next year do not like the Irish land nurchase bill with its note of £33,000,000 upon a security publicly questioned by some of themselves and without the support of the Irish members. When the Irish land purchase bill is proposed they know it will be received by the opposition with demand for Irish local government. which they are pledged to give, and upon which a division will be taken probably before Christmas. There need be no doubt that in this week's council of the ministers the proposals to be recommended on the opening of parlia-ment were all framed with a view of weathering the coming session, but the time is dangerous for the ministers, and they are so fearful of the relaxing energies of their friends throughout the country that not

Declined to Produce the Ballots. LITTLE ROCK, ARK., Nov. 15 .- In the United States court to-day John McClure for the government and Col. John M. Moore for the respondent made lengthy arguments on motions for subpoena to compel J. C. Massey, county clerk of Conway county, to produce before the grand jury the bullots of all boxes of Morriltown : recinct, Massey went before the jury and showed them the poll books but declined to produce the ballots, claiming that the statutes of the state required him to keep them for a certain length of time, the violation of which law subjected him to fine and was cause for his removal from office. McClure contended that as the government had the right to inspect a ballot box when it was necessary they should be used ns evidence the criminal in proceedings. Moore held there was no case before the court, that the statutes of the state prohibited the inspection of the ballots unless in case of contest and grand jury they would lose their value as evidence if contested cases should be brought in the future. After listoning to the arguments of the attorneys Judge Williams said that on Monday November 24, he would listen to further argument. in the meanwhile the respondent could enjoy his liberty but was instructed to appear in court on that day.

To Exact Duty on Calves.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 .- Assistant Secretary Spalding has informed the collector of customs at Nogales, Arizona, that while no objection is perceived to his passing free of duty cattle of un-doubted domestic origin which may have strayed into Mexican territory, there is serious objections to the extension of some privileges to the increase of such cattle (calves) which may have occurred during their absence in foreigh territory. He is particularly instructed to exact duty on all such calves.

For the last week nothing but ten-dollar suits have been talked of in clothing circles. Now that our competitors have had their say and unloaded their chestnuts, we are to the front with our line of ten-dollar suits. We shall offer all overcoats at actual cost, and all other lines or clothing in the same prop rtion.
